HAPPY WOMEN.

Wouldn't any woman be happy, after years of backache suffering, Days of misery, nights of unrest, The distress of urinary troubles, To find relief and cure? No reason why any reader Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. Almira A. Jackson, of East Fort St., Traverses City, Mich., says: "For twenty years I was doctoring for kidney and liver trouble, but without benefit. Just before I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was almost paralyzed. I could hardly stand on my feet because of the numbness and weakness. I had a lack of circulation. Had a knife been thrust into my kidneys the pain could not have been more intense. My sleep was disturbed by visions of distorted figures. The kidney secretions were annoyingly irregular, and I was tortured with thirst and always bloated. I used seven boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. The bloating subsided until I weighed 100 pounds less, could sleep like a child and was relieved of the pain and the irregularity of the kidney action. My circulation is good and I feel better in every way."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Jackson will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price, 50 cents per box.

Spring's Reign.

The Spring has come to reveal make, Calling the fern from shore and brake, Where the soft breezes whispering low, Dispersed the frost and snow and floor. The red start wakes in sweetest song, With mellow a glint the hills along, And robin, from the moor and fen, Gladens with song the earth again. The prairie springs the mountain hills, The mossy rocks, the verdant hills, Bedeck the emerald everywhere. Flame maple, with palest green Of birch and poplar too, are seen Spreading their branches to the air, Inviting feathered songsters there. Tenants of the wood and stream, All come in form, as in a dream. Of clearest visions, that impress The two-fold life within the breast; And hearts of men once more made bright, After the mists and frosts and light, To awake exquisite joy again, And bounteous Spring once more doth reign.

JOHNSON'S

Anodyne

LINIMENT

ends pain at once, whether it's inside or out. This great National family doctor gets right down to the seat of the trouble, relieves the inflammation and works the cure, because every element in the formula is a soothing and healing one. A few drops on sugar will relieve, and in most cases cure, a cough, cold, sore throat or tonsils. It cures, cramps, croup, colic and diarrhoea. An application on strained muscles, or on cuts, wounds, contusions, chilblain or frost bite, takes out all the soreness and the ache.

Any inflammation, within or without, is greatly benefited or entirely cured by Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. When it comes, pain goes.

How Japs Keep Strong

The Advertiser Readers Can Learn Something of Value from This.

Such a thing as a weakling is hardly known in Japan. The wonderful endurance of the Japanese soldiers and sailors in the recent war has been the marvel of all nations. Both men and women are well, happy and strong.

The reason for this, so careful investigators tell us, is that the Japanese from childhood up know how to keep well through care of the digestive system. If they have trouble with indigestion, heartburn, wind on the stomach, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, headaches, rheumatism, back-aches, or any of the other troubles caused by a weak stomach, they treat themselves with some of the principal remedies that compose Mi-o-na, a stomach remedy that has already a large sale in Norway at Noyes Drug Store.

So uniformly successful has the remedy been in curing all stomach troubles where it is used in accordance with the simple directions given with each box, that Noyes Drug Store give a signed guarantee with every 50 cent package to refund the money if Mi-o-na fails to benefit.

They take all the risk. If you have any stomach weakness, are nervous or fear that some articles of food will cause trouble and indigestion, here's the opportunity to get well without risking a cent. Those who use Mi-o-na are able to eat anything digestible without fear of results.

Wanderers of Maine.

Yes, we are wanderers of Maine,
We've wandered from the fold,
And sweetest memories in our hearts,
Is where the bobolink doth sing,
In spring time's sun and rain,
Where lake and river, brook and rill,
Still whisper dear old Maine,
Our childhood days without a care,
We spent in dear old Maine,
As we wandered through the woodland
Along the lake and river,
And up the pasture lane,
Where blueberries grew in clusters,
And blackberries with them yied;
O, yes, we think of all these things,
The joys of youth did fill,
Our days with peace and gladness,
In the school house on the hill,
O, we are wanderers; yet we hope
Some day to come to Maine,
And there to meet the dear old friends,
And clasp their hands again;
To join the party up the lake
And camp upon the shore,
And feel the thrill of youth again,
To drink the "hurrah tea" once more.
As we think of all these things to-day,
Seems wistful to us in a dream,
While in this distant clime,
O, it would be a pleasant thing,
Those dear old friends to meet
And clasp them by the hand a-ain,
'T would make our joys complete.

Message to the Poor Young Men.

The poor young man and his education is a problem, which finds its way to the heart of every public spirited citizen. In spite of the strong appeal which the subject makes, there are few schools whose sole purpose is the education of the poor fellow. It is in the last foot of the schools which makes the Mount Hermon School, Mount Hermon, Massachusetts, a unique feature in our educational world.

Did Dwight L. Moody feel more strongly than others the need of the young man of limited means; or was he fitted by the similarity of his own case to sympathize with such young men? It was a combination of his circumstances which led him to found this school, which, in his own words, purposes "to help young men of very limited means to get an education such as would have done me good when I was their age."

During the twenty-five years of its history the school has undergone an evolution from an idea to a splendid school of four hundred men. From a few poor buildings in a pasture covered with stumps, the school has grown to a splendid campus with a thoroughly up-to-date equipment. That it has been able to do this is a testimony of the loyalty of Mr. Moody to the cause of the poor young man, and the loyalty of his friends to him.

Through the agency of the school 5000 young men have come to honor the memory of the great founder. Ninety-five per cent of these men have come from homes in limited circumstances. A question which each has had to answer before he could register as a student of the school is—"Can you afford to go elsewhere?" Sixty per cent of these men have relied solely upon their own efforts. The school, true to its purpose, helps such young men; first, by giving them work on the school farms; secondly, by fixing a low tuition charge, which is enabled to do by the kindness and liberality of its friends and alumni.

An attendant consequence of poverty is the enforced neglect of early schooling privileges. Many of the Mount Hermon men are several years beyond the mark of citizenship. At Mount Hermon they may do either grammar or college preparatory work with those of their own ages. Many older men come from the farms for a term or two and then return to their work. They come to Mount Hermon because there they can combine courses in either practical or theoretical agriculture with any grammar or high school subject, from arithmetic to trigonometry and chemistry, or from English grammar to a study of Shakespeare. The average age of all men in attendance in 1905 was over 20 years.

The men at Mount Hermon come from many different sources. Eighty-two per cent of the five thousand men since 1881, have come from the different states in the Union. All States but four have sent representatives. The remainder are foreigners who have come from twenty different foreign countries—from the different countries in Europe and Asia; from our insular possessions and from South America and Canada.

As varied as the sources from which they came are their circumstances and walks of life. The farmer boys in a large majority, the New Yorker, the Spanish war veteran, the Englishman, the sailor, the Jap, the miser boy from the West, the son of a merchant who is interested in the school, the sons of clergymen—these men unite to form a healthful and useful literary and athletic life.

What these men lack in early training, they make up in purpose and in seriousness of application. They vary very much in their intellectual powers from the brilliant young fellow to the one who finds that progress, in spite of his struggles that is slow. It is the testimony of the college world, however, that these men make useful, successful college men. Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Wesleyan, count Hermon men among their prominent debaters, prize winners, office holders and popular men.

When in the coming summer from June 30th to July 3, the Alumni of Mount Hermon return for the thirty-fifth anniversary of the school, there will be present an assembly of men once poor, poor no longer because they have had the determination and energy to struggle against adverse circumstances; men who have worked their way through Hermon and college to success. That a man's course in life is in his own hands is illustrated every day in many schools; but nowhere is it illustrated in such a striking way as at Mount Hermon, where men come from the shops, the mills, the farms, and become students.

Let our poor young men remember this—that, in spite of difficulties and unfavorable surroundings, they may get an education if he has the courage and determination to work for it. In the educational world, "where there's a will there's a way," for any young man who is willing to devote time and energy to the accomplishment of an end. Listen to the shop the professional world is open to such a one. Is it not worth while to try?

DISEASES OF THE SKIN.

Charles Gammage Eastman, Born in Fryburg, Afterward Called the Burns of the Green Mountains—Some of His Songs Proved Great Favorites.

Charles Gammage Eastman was born on the banks of the Saco in the village of Fryburg, June 1, 1816. When about 12 years old he moved with his parents to Barnard, Vt., and his education was continued at Royalton, Windsor and Burlington, and he was graduated from the University of Vermont in the class of 1837. Even before graduation he was a frequent contributor to the editorial column of the Burlington Sentinel, of which at a later period John Godfrey Saxo was associate editor, and his writings were marked by a directness and force unusual in one of his years.

He founded the Lamolille River Express at Johnson in 1838 and the Spirit of the Age at Woodstock in 1840. In these papers he was prominent in his denunciations of the Whigs and their policy, and labored zealously, although unsuccessfully, to build up the fortunes of the Democratic party in Vermont. In 1846 he purchased the Montpelier Patriot, which he owned and edited until a short time before his death.

Mr. Eastman was postmaster at Woodstock and Montpelier for several years, and a member of the state senate in 1851-52. He had indulged in verse writing ever since his college days, and was frequently invited to read some of his longer poems before literary societies, but it was not until 1848 when, from his own press at Montpelier, his poems were issued in a volume of about 350 pages, that he was generally recognized as a poet.

His fancy was tender, wayward and delicate, and some of his lyrics are among the most beautiful ever written by an American. He has been aptly described as the "Burns of the Green Mountains," and his "The Farmer Sat in His Easy Chair," "The Pauper's Burial," "Come Sing Me the Song That You Sang Years Ago," and many other of his poems will never be forgotten.

Mr. Eastman was a handsome man, with features of classic outline, and his head crowned with dark, curling hair. He was a delightful companion and a sincere and steadfast friend. He died suddenly at Burlington in 1861, at the age of 45.

War Stories.

Two soldier couriers en route to Petersburg came to a forked road and asked a negro which was the best road to take. He replied, "Both roads lead there, one is a bad road and the other worse, no matter which one you take before you get half way there you'll wish you took the other."

Our soldier friend says he has been on picket when the lightning would ring through the woods, whole corps marching in with fixed bayonets in the thunder storm and never one man hit, although the storms were more severe than here, this being in Virginia. Cavalry men had sabre, carbine and revolver, sabre on one side and carbine on the other, both sides and no one hit by lightning.

Soldiers were flogged for misdemeanors. Whipping posts in the South, where negroes were whipped with cat-o'-nine-tails for misdeeds, were in the hands of a negro preacher said "A colored man was de fust man dat was made. He was de lamb of God, cause he had de wool on his head. De way de fust white man cum he was an unruly nigger and put him in de stocks and he was de fust white man and called him a white man." One of the niggers in the congregation jumped up and asked "Who made de fence?"

The Oldest Couple in Paris.
Mr. and Mrs. George W. Ripley are living on their farm on Paris Hill at the advanced age of 89 and 85 years. Mr. Ripley was the son of Capt. and Mrs. Variah Ripley, the youngest of a family of thirteen children. At the age of 15 years he learned the blacksmith trade and he worked at that business in connection with his farm work. At that time he hammered out the shoes himself. Later he made baskets that had a ready sale.

Four of their eleven children are living. Two of his sons served in the Civil war, one, William being killed at Chancellorsville. They have celebrated the 60th anniversary of their wedding and they are looking forward to their 75th anniversary.

Five enforcement deputies swooped down on Canton Thursday and drove at once to the farm of Mrs. Mary L. Lavoie, where they raided two buildings, and seized an amount of beer, a barrel of wine and a bottling machine. No arrests were made as Mr. Lavoie was away. He is an Italian boss who lets out crews to work on railways, sewers and construction work all over Maine. He keeps a large number of men at his farm, in Canton and they always have had their beer to drink.

The New England Magazine for June is a big Boston number specially dedicated to the interests of the Hub city. Foremost among the articles is one by the Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, Mayor of Boston in which he discourses on the Duties of a Modern Mayor.

Carrie M. Maine has made a transfer of land in Oldfield to Danforth N. Winslow; also to Ella A. Lunt as recorded with the Cumberland Co. register of deeds.

Elastic Paint.

Paint must be elastic—it must give and take with the shrinking and swelling of the wood and with the swaying of the building. If it is not elastic it soon looks seamy, cracks and breaks away, unable to protect the surface which it is supposed to cover.

The most elastic paint is Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil. It is so elastic, in fact, that a piece of soft white pine so painted may be struck sufficiently hard with a hammer to make a good sized dent, without cracking the paint at all.

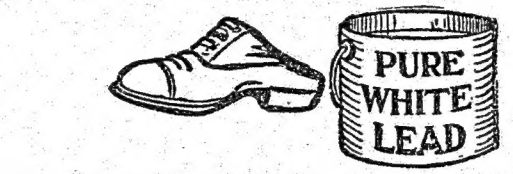

Try it with a paint composed of zinc, barytes, etc., and see what happens. The hard, inelastic paint, which refuses to give under the tap of the hammer, will also refuse to expand and contract with the wood under the action of the sun, the rain and the snow.

To make sure of a paint which will not look seamy, crack and lose its hold, specify

Cooking in Hot Weather.
Of course every woman knows how disagreeable it is to keep a hot fire for hours in the summer time, in order to cook beans or meat, and for that reason, perhaps the following articles may interest some of the readers of this paper.

Having read in the late magazines and papers in regard to the new method of cooking, the following experiments were tried with fine results:

The first test was with beans. They were prepared in exactly the same way as for baking; were placed in the oven long enough to become thoroughly heated and boil briskly for 30 minutes; they were taken from the oven and placed in a common wash tub, the beans being taken that the bean pot cover was firmly in place. Newspapers were packed securely around the bean pot, in order for the beans to keep all the steam and heat possible. The boiler cover was firmly put in place and the beans being away in the pantry or some out of the way place, where it would not be disturbed. It was allowed to sit in this manner over night, and in the morning on being opened the beans were found to be finely done and warm enough to serve.

The second experiment was tried with meat. A piece of beef of three or four pounds was placed in a kettle and allowed to become thoroughly heated, and then to cook briskly for about 15 minutes. It was then taken from the stove, closely covered and placed in a boiler in the same way as the beans. The meat was left in this way for about six hours and when opened was found to be nicely done and warm enough for serving.

During the coming hot summer days, by following this method it will be possible to cook a dinner without being obliged to keep a hot fire all day and make the house hot and uncomfortable.

Removing Wall Paper.

This spring a lady remarked to me that she had five or six rooms to re-paper and was dreading the work of getting the old paper off the walls and ceilings, when a paper-hanger's wife incidentally remarked, "Why, soak it with hot paste, and it will come off beautifully." The experiment was tried, and was very satisfactory and pleasant, and of hard scraping. The directions are very simple. Make a flour paste, not quite as thick as for putting on paper, and apply it warm to the old paper with a whitewash brush or something of the kind. Cover about three strips of the paper with the paste, let it soften a few minutes and it will peel off like magic. Have a large basket to throw the old paper into, as it will be dauby.

If there is more than one coat of paper on the walls the paste is not so effective, though it helps some. This will be another argument against putting on new paper over the old. It is not a wise thing to do under any circumstances. The old paper should all come off, and then every hole and crevice should be filled with plaster of Paris, putty or something of the kind. If there are any cracks over the base boards or in any other places, fill them up before hanging the new paper. This is a day against spiders or bugs of any kind. The watchword is, be thorough—very, very thorough.

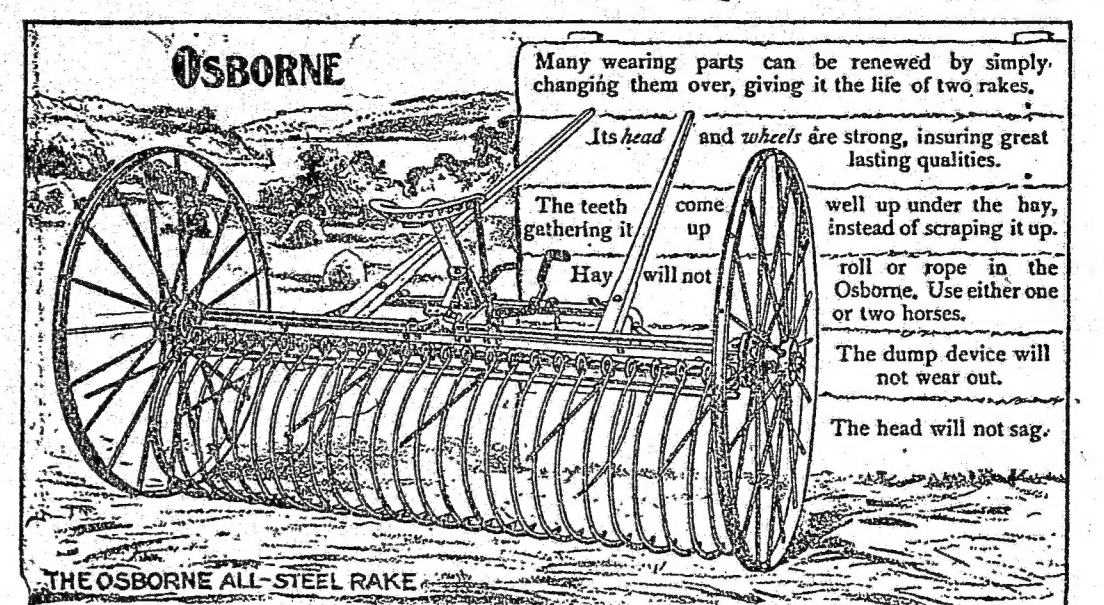

If the plaster on the ceiling or wall has loosened from the ceiling and is soon going to be in a condition to fall, take some large headed screws and put them through the plaster into the lath. A piece of thick tin an inch square or larger may be slipped onto the screw before it is placed as this will aid in holding the plaster. Sink the screw into the plaster a little, so that there will be no ridge under the paper. This is an easy and neat way to fix loose plaster, and will make it last for some time.

William Cole of Lewiston, who was operated upon for appendicitis at the Central Maine General hospital, has been to South Paris to recuperate.

Biliousness and Constipation.

"For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been to-day had I not tried Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. The effects were simply marvelous. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, purify the stomach, liver and blood, helping the system to do its work naturally. They bring back new life and energy, a bright eye, a clear brow and a happy heart."—Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala. SOUTH PARIS.

Dogs Dying.

The mortality among dogs here which started a few weeks ago still continues. Dogs belonging to George Pratt and W. S. Jackson were taken with the same symptoms as were shown by two dogs which had previously died, but they came out all right. W. O. Frothingham's dog was not so fortunate, for he only survived the attack only fifteen minutes. Indications of poison were so strong in the case of the Frothingham dog that his stomach was examined, and strychnine found. No farther than this is known about the matter but it looks as if some one was leaving poison around in rather a negligent manner.

Mrs. Ira Murch is confined to her bed by illness.

Roy H. Curtis of Augusta spent the Sabbath at home.

Mrs. Alton C. Wheeler is in Boston for a stay of about two weeks.

Charles H. Howard starts the last of the week for a visit in Everett, Mass.

Harry P. King of Portland has begun building a house in the King neighborhood.

Harold B. Chapman of Auburn was through this place canvassing for nursery stock.

The ladies of the Methodist church will have a food sale at their vestry this Friday at 3 p. m.

The rain of Sunday brought Stony brook up so the water was quite high Monday morning.

W. D. Clark and family are moving into their new house on the corner of High and Gothic streets.

W. D. Clark, the trader has taken the fence away around his lot which improves the place very much.

The ladies of the G. A. R. met at the G. A. R. hall Monday and Tuesday to make wreaths for Memorial day.

Florence W. Lovell of Auburn, a former assistant in the high school here, recently visited Mrs. Walter L. Gray.

Horace Swan, who has been to Groton helping take down the mills the Mason Mfg Co. bought, has returned home.

The Republican voters of the town are requested to meet at the caucus to be held on Saturday, June 10th, at 3 p. m.

A number of high school girls accompanied by Miss Jewett as chaperone attended the ball game at Mechanic Falls Saturday.

Quite a number of the young people from here attended the graduation at Norway last Thursday evening at the Opera house.

George R. Morton, treasurer of the Paris Manufacturing Co. who has been to England on a business trip arrived home last week.

There will be a special collection taken at the Baptist church next Sunday for the benefit of the Maine Baptist Educational society.

Another hygienic test was made Saturday night by the Norway Water company with about the same results as at the previous test.

The high school continues fourteen weeks and graduation is to be June 21st. E. F. Clason, the principal, is active in labors for the good of all.

Appropriate memorial services were held Saturday evening, by the ladies of the G. A. R. in memory of Alice M. Caverly and Mary F. Bennett.

The rain last Sunday did not prevent a good audience from assembling at the Universalist church to listen to the excellent sermon delivered by Bro. Davis of Norway.

Fruit trees and wild cherry trees are already spotted full of the apple tree caterpillar webs and it is evident that considerable work will have to be done to keep them down.

The Four Ponds club of this place have engaged their camp at Four Ponds for the first of the year and expect to leave for there this Friday. This has been a regular annual trip for many years.

Hotel Andrews and the houses of Hiram Pulsifer, on Pleasant street, Charles H. Thayer on Park street, and George H. Davis on Maple street are among the buildings that are receiving a new coat of paint this spring.

Mount Pleasant Rebekah lodge is planning to have a fair some time about first of October, and it is hoped that each member will take an active interest and make something during the summer for the benefit of the fair.

The patriotic concert given by the Universalist Sunday school in Good Cheer Hall, Sunday evening, was well attended in spite of the bad weather. The program consisted of singing, recitations and exercises mainly by the children, and all appropriate to Memorial day.

The delegates and alternates, from the Universalist parish here, chosen to attend the Annual State Convention at Rockland, June 4, 5, 6, 7, are Charles A. Young, A. C. Tubbs, Mrs. J. H. Little, Mrs. Herbert Hillon, Grace Thayer, and Mrs. E. H. Farrar and Mand Douglass.

Roy H. Porter of this place, U. of M. '06, is receiving many congratulations on his accomplishments at the New England Intercollegiate Athletic meet at Brookline, Mass. Porter won the 220 yard dash in 22.4-5 seconds and was second in the 100 yard dash in 10-1-5 seconds.

Only a small part of the Mason Manufacturing Company's lot now remains to be cleared. It needs only a glance at the lot and its situation to shingle the most desirable place that could be secured for the factory. The batters have up for a part of the buildings, and show the factory is to be no small affair.

W. S. Wright of Bethel, by request of his friends is holding a most enthusiastic singing class at the Methodist vestry during his vacation. This is for the young to learn to read music the right way by note, also the last hour of the evening is for the advanced singers to sing in choir and chorus practice, which is of great value to all. A free lesson will be given extra for the children in the day time. It is hoped that many more will come in.

It was decided at the recent meeting of the trustees of the Oxford County Agricultural society to shingle the main exhibition building, make what general repairs that are necessary, and build some more stalls for horses. The new stalls will be built on the lower side of the grounds near the grand stand, and it is the intention eventually to get all the horse stalls into that part of the grounds, and get rid of those along the front fence which are inconveniently situated and are already getting old.

Memorial Services.

The Memorial sermon before Wm. K. Kimball Post, G. A. R., was given Sunday afternoon at the Congregational church by the pastor, Rev. A. K. Baldwin. A good number of the members of the Post and ladies of the G. A. R. were in attendance. The singing was by the male quartette of the church. Rev. Mr. Clifford was assisted by Rev. J. H. Little in the opening exercises. The sermon was earnest and impressive, delivered with much feeling, and held the attention of the audience throughout.

C. E. Brett was at Averill, Vt., a couple days last week fishing. He was guided by Fred Lea and 12 salmon were caught. The largest weighed 4½ lbs. Charles stopped at the Lake Side Inn and returned home, Saturday, much pleased with the trip.

A Young Man Who Is Sure to Win.

I once stopped in a small country hotel for a few days and one afternoon noticed that the bell boy, a clean but poorly attired lad, was reading a text book on anatomy. The flashily dressed clerk detected my look of surprise and with a guileful said: "We've got an 'Esculapius' here; our John thinks he's going to be a doctor." The bell boy, when he showed me my room, asked him about his studies and how he could keep them up with his many duties to perform. He told me that he arose at 5 o'clock in the morning, built the fires, cleaned the office and dining room, met the 6 o'clock train and did chores and errands up to noon, but in the afternoon he only had to run a few errands and look after guests, and he usually had two or three hours which he desired to improve. His evenings were busy about the hotel until 9 o'clock, when he was off duty, but he did not go to sleep until 11 o'clock, so that he had between 5 a. m. and 11 p. m. from four to five hours in which he could study. He had determined to become a doctor, and at that time he had been poring over that text book on anatomy for three months, the village doctor occasionally giving him a little assistance.

I asked him what he would do when he had mastered anatomy.

"Oh, I'm going to college," he replied, "I haven't planned just how, yet, but I'm going when I'm through with anatomy."

I believe I shall live to see the day when that bell boy is a famous physician. He has in him the principal requisite of success—the determination to accomplish what he sets his mind to, regardless of difficulties and discouragements, and he is finding happiness in the progress he is making.

"Count your many blessings, name them one by one. Count your many blessings, see what God hath done. Count your many blessings, name them one by one. And it will surprise you what the Lord hath done."

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Kerwin are now in Lynn, Mass., where he has a good job at his trade.

A letter from our aunt, widow of the late Capt. C. O. Pratt says that she has returned to her home in Paris. She writes that she has had her husband's stone set and paid for it out of her pension money. She should know that the U. S. Government allows $36 for all soldiers of Civil War. So she can write to the Quartermaster General at Washington and get it, and get her Grand Army Ford to sign the paper that she paid for his stone and his funeral expenses. Uncle Sam is honorable in his dealings with soldiers and their widows.

Dennis Casey, on account of sickness, has returned to the hospital at Togus. He may come back if his health permits.

He enlisted in the Civil War, Co. B, 3d U. S. Cavalry at Washington and served three years. He endured many hardships and contracted malaria from which he will never recover. All honor to the brave ones who loved our flag. He has a brother living on 36 Common street, in Lowell, Mass., who was a soldier. We recall a bugle call for cavalry which he sang while here.

"All that are able must go to their stables and turn out their horses and give them some hay."

For if they don't do it the Colonel will know it, And then there will be the Devil to pay."

Near the close of the way he said the Rebel soldiers flocked to the Union quarters and said, "For God's sake give us something to eat," and asked where their families were. Now we deck their graves with flowers, the Blue and the Gray, for they were soldiers brave and tears of love and pride on them, we shed.

We have had four days of rain. The 27th was Memorial Sunday and Nature shed tears on the graves of the fallen brave.

"The Bugle's wild and warlike blast, Shall muster them no more; An army now might thunder past And they need heed its roar."

The starry flag "neath which they fought, In this bloody day, From their old graves shall rouse them not, For they have passed away."

Let the teachers in every public school remember Memorial Day as a day to pay honor to those who saved our Flag and Union.

"Far as our starry banner flies, Repeating Freedom's story, O bid the common school arise, A benison of glory; For what would flag or country be, To all our sons and daughters, If Learning's fount were sealed, and we Might never quaff its waters."

An Editor's Apology.

The editor who can please every one is not suited for this earth, but is entitled to wings. Human nature is so constituted that some of our readers would like to have us feed them on scandal; some would like to have us tell the unvarnished truth about them, while others would kill us if we did. It is a comforting thought to the editor to know that the Lord Himself did not please every one while on earth. We labor hard to entertain and please our subscribers but that we should occasionally fail is to be expected, but you will always find us willing to be forgiven.—[Old Town Enterprise.]

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Once more the Angel of Death has entered our ranks, and taken from our midst a beloved member, Brother Daniel Swift, therefore

Resolved that in the death of our brother an honored and respected member of West Paris Grange has passed to that home above, where the Supreme Master of the Universe reigns. This fraternity loses a true brother and his family a loving father. He was ever ready to lend a helping hand and extend charity and good counsel to all, faithful in all trusts and all positions of responsibility.

Resolved that West Paris Grange P. of H. No. 388, extend to the bereaved families our sincere sympathy in their irreparable loss.

Resolved that these resolutions be placed on our records and copies sent to the families of the deceased, and a like copy presented to some local paper for publication.

Bert Wood's horse, which was being driven by Hattie Judkins, fell because of a hole in the road at Bethel and bit its tongue badly. A surgeon took several stitches to sew up the wound.

Henry E. Fifield, who has been studying lately at the Maryland Medical School in Baltimore, has gone to work for the Elevated Road in Boston, Mass. Later he will resume the study of medicine.

The Sunday school classes of Rev. C. A. Brooks and Dennis L. Joslyn held a party at the Methodist parsonage, Saturday evening. Games were played and refreshments served, after which a May basket was hung to Roy Curtis and Marion Calof.

Letter to E. N. Sweet.
Norway, Maine.
Dear Sir: A painter complained that our cans are too full; unhandy; spill. It's a way we have; 'tis handier not to be full; but we have a weakness for full-measure. Our gallon contains eight pints; the usual "gallon" is seven. We'll think it over again; but we like a full can. How much shorter would you like a barrel? Seven gallons would be the proportion. Short-measure suggests that the shortage is probably not in the cheapest ingredient. Guess we'll stick to four quarts to a gallon, and fifty gallons a barrel. The name to go by is Devore lead-and-zinc. Yours truly,
F. W. Devore & Co.

Class '06 N. H. S. Graduation.

Although Thursday night was rainy and disagreeable to be out, there was a good crowd at the graduation exercises at the Opera House. The class of '06 consists of five girls and four boys. The stage was attractively decorated with ferns and sweet potter plants. The girls were all handsomely gowned in white and the boys wore neat suits of black.

Excellent music was furnished by the Tschakowsky orchestra. When the opening piece was struck up the class marched in slowly led by the marshal, Jasper W. Everett. Seated upon the platform were taken by Messrs. W. F. Jones, H. L. Horne and G. E. Tubbs of the school committee, Superintendent C. P. Barnes, and the school faculty, Principal P. E. Hathaway, Sub-master D. I. Gould, Assistant Grace B. Bicknell.

Rev. E. S. Cotton of the Baptist church offered an earnest prayer.

Each of the speakers spoke in a pleasing manner. Salutatory by Esca Main and essay, Life Insurance Dislosures. Insurance commissioners do not do their duty. The heads of the insurance companies use the funds for their own benefit and for campaign purposes, which is against the law. They use the money to speculate with and if they win they put the profit in their own pockets and if they lose they return it to the policy holder should be allowed to vote. But since the disclosures the past year or two the companies rest on a much stronger foundation than before.

Charity and Charitable Organizations was the subject of the essay by Anna Eliza Gibson. Indiscriminate alms giving results many times in giving where it is least needed. One should give to obtain social credit and the money be used to the best good. She spoke very favorably of the work of the Salvation Army and the Red Cross society. The former relieves the poor and distressed in our towns and cities, while the latter cares for the sick and wounded in times of war and other great disasters.

Iva Ellen Russell, the historian, found it hard to give the history thus far of nine equally renowned people and especially of the male members of the class. Thirteen years ago their school life in the Norway schools began. In 1896, thirty-four boys and girls met in the grammar school and took their examinations. Since then they have passed through the grades and many changes have been made. Some have fallen by the wayside, some have gone to brighten other schools, and for various causes the number in the class is now only nine.

In the last few years they have seen the reality of school life and by hard study and the help of those around them reached the senior stage, and it is with a feeling of sadness that they leave their happy school life.

A subject of much interest and one well handled by Jasper Willard Everett was The Panama Canal, Past and Present. Spoke of the work of the French and their failure to complete it. Thinks that the United States has gone at it in a business like way and will succeed.

Annie Laura Danforth's subject was The Value of Nature Study. Wherever we are, we are dependent on nature. It is a study that is not rightly understood by all. One should learn to see personally and mingle with the beauties of nature. Nothing is better to revive our spirits than a walk in the neighboring woods. It strengthens our character and instills a love of truth.

The Preservation of Our Forests by Clarence Whitney Buck was an important and interesting subject. The greatest destruction to our forests is by forest fires. These are sometimes started by careless smokers and sparks from engines. The authorities have appointed 141 fire wardens in the State whose duty it is to look after this matter. Another destruction to our forests is that of lumbermen cutting half grown trees.

Our Navy, the essay by Carl Torsey Foster, showed much study and was very interesting. From the earliest times the navy has been of the greatest value to the nations. Spoke of our first great naval commander, John Paul Jones, who can rightly be called the father of our navy. The United States can boast of the best sailors in the world.

Leola Mildred Noyes, the class prophet, presented the prophecy in a most interesting and pleasing manner. Annie Danforth to be a teacher of literature; Clarence Buck, a great singer; Annie Gibson, a landscape painter; Carl Foss, a dealer in meats and groceries; Ida Russell, an old maid; Charlotte Lovejoy, a lecturer on women's rights; Jasper Everett, a farmer; Esca Main, a professor of Latin.

The Business Girl's Preparation and Valedictory by Charlotte Lovejoy. A business girl should be educated and should never let an opportunity to gain knowledge of her chosen vocation go by. She must preserve her character. There are already too many jacks of all trades and the business girl should learn to do one thing well. She should know how to appreciate a home.

Before the presentation of diplomas, Superintendent Barnes made some fitting remarks. He stated in part that the class of '06 should feel proud to be in the class of '06 and do proud that about one week before the Norway High School had been approved by the New England College Entrance Certificate Board.

The Don C. Seltz prize of twenty-five dollars in gold was awarded to Charlotte Lovejoy for best rank during the four years.

Commencement Ball.
Despite the disagreeable weather, Friday evening, the commencement ball was a most successful affair. There was a good crowd on the balcony and fifty couples on the grand march, just large enough a crowd to have a good time. Music by Tschakowsky orchestra. The dance orders were white and tied with royal purple, the class colors.

Madame Schumann-Heink will be the prima donna at the tenth Maine Musical Festival, other artists engaged are Madame Corinne Kister-Kelsey, John Miles, Edward P. Johnson, Clifford Wiley and several noted Maine singers.

Sam Jones once said, "Stand in a row eight common sense young men and put at the further end a little dund and the young girls will pass by the eight and pick out the dund—as the cutest little fellow I ever saw." I like the advice an old man is said to have given to his daughter; said he, "Do not marry a poor man, but remember that the poorest man is one who has money and nothing else."

Thick tongues are responsible for a lot of this ideas.

Memorial Sunday.

Sunday was the rainy Sunday of the year, and there was not as large an attendance at the G. A. R. Memorial services at the Congregational church as there would otherwise have been. The church was beautifully decorated with flags and apple blossoms. The quartet sang selections appropriate for the occasion.

Rev. B. S. Rideout gave a sermon that was a study on the observance of memorial. It was on a thought found in the twelfth chapter of Exodus.—And this shall be unto you for a memorial.

There shall ye observe this day in your generations by an ordinance forever.

He spoke of the decadence of nations when they ceased to honor their dead heroes, of the way that these soldiers must feel from having lived to the nation they had helped to preserve first among the nations of the earth; of the vast improvements that they had lived to see in so many things for the good of the people since the close of the war for the year one ago; of the three great influential attributes aside from the press and literature, for patriotism and advancement, the home, the schools and the church; of the tender memories this day brings to the hearts of the nation, diminishing ranks of the G. A. R.

Oxford Basket Shop.

In Oxford is located a basket factory employing nine men who are able to make the double bushel baskets per day. Four varieties of wood are used, viz: Ash, oak, elm and birch, beside brown bass which is used only for the bottoms of the round baskets.

The logs as they come from the woods, are cut into planks two and one-half inches in thickness. The planks are cut into pieces nearly square and varying in length from ten inches to eight feet. These are cut into strips from which the baskets are made. The long strips are used for the large square "steaming baskets," which have a capacity of four bushels and over, and are used for steaming wool in woolen mills. To keep it from rotting, the larger baskets are also in demand with saw mills, cotton and bobbin mills.

Before the blocks are cut into strips, they are thoroughly steamed to make the wood pliable. In case the strips are intended for the bottoms of the baskets, the blocks are "pointed," i. e., a small piece is taken from the two sides of one end to make the strips fit the bottom of the basket.

The bottoms of the baskets are cut by the machinery with a knife and for different sizes. All the machinery is run by a dynamo.

The inside bottom of the basket is fastened to a stationary, circular iron frame, and the "second" or the strips which are sorted as they are cut are nailed to this. The better strips for the outside are placed over these in such a manner that the center of each comes just over the space between the inside strips. The outside bottom is then placed and fastened in such a manner that the grain of the wood in one runs at right angles to that in the other. This is called cleating.

The baskets are ready for the hoops. It is placed upon a form and a hoop pushed to the top to secure it there. The basket is marked for the lower hoop which has previously been steamed and bent. The hoop is secured in place and fits tightly.

"Hooping." The basket is ready for the "top hooping" and after this is done the top is trimmed and steel "ears" having been fastened on, the basket is ready for the market.

For the bales the wire and handles are bought. The wire is first cut by a gage of the required length. The handle is slipped on and the curves which hold it in place are quickly made as are also the loops at the ends of the handle. The handle is then placed on a wooden form and is ready for the basket and the basket with this addition is ready for the market.

The woven baskets, which are much used for clothes baskets, are made of the Iowa straw, which is then weaving is finished a form is placed upon the flat cornerwise and the basket is shaped, after which the hoops previously shaped, are placed and the basket is finished. The handle is then placed on a wooden form and is ready for the basket and the basket with this addition is ready for the market.

The Indian's View.
Of the Effect of Civilization.

In a cabin on the plains of Montana three of us sat talking. An educated plains Indian, a Government sub-agent, and myself. I was telling of the splendid advancement of the Apaches, and how well they would work. At the close of my story the agent turned to the Indian and asked him, "Why don't your people work like that?" All about the cabin, as a decorative frieze, was a row of buffalo skulls. The Indian said he would tell us the story, saying: "I tell you why. While the buffalo were alive we did not need to work. Only niggers and white people farmed. We were a superior people and had nothing but contempt for those who worked. Do you realize that I, a handsome young man, know the days when if we wanted food we had but to ride out on the plains, shoot buffalo, or other game, and the women would go out and bring it into camp? Do you expect us, in the fraction of a life-time, in the quarter of the age of an old man, to have changed our whole life, and even to have gotten the days of the old freedom when we were lords of all the great plains and mountains? In what way does your civilization benefit us? Before you had attempted to force your so-called civilization upon us we had every desire of the heart! An easy, happy life, with no worry, with no brave a certainty of a future life of plenty and comfort. What has your civilization done for us? Robbed us of our land, our strength, our dignity, our content. Even your religion has robbed us of our confidence. In what way have you given us in return? Desire, corruption, beggary, discontent. You have robbed us of our birthright, and scarcely given us a husk. You said we make use of the land as the white man would, so you made it from us and use it as you like. I could as well go to the man who has his millions loaned at three per cent, and say, 'You are only getting three per cent, for this.' I can't do that. I will take it, because I can make the best use of it."—[From "The Tribes of the Northwest Plains," by E. S. Curtis, in the June Scribner.

How He Did It.

Graphic Description of Trout Fishing in "Silas Strong."

Who could resist the silent "call of the wild" in the description by Irving Bacheller of the taking of Dunmore's trout in "Silas Strong."

"Strong paddled to a large, flat rock which rose, midstream, a little above water. He climbed upon it and sat down lazily. He drew a loop of arm or body, his wrist bent, the point of the rod sprang forward, his flies leaped the length of his line and fell lightly on the river surface. They waved across the current. He drew another loop of line. His rod rose and gave its double spring, and his flies leaped away and fell farther down the current. So his line flickered back and forth, running out and reaching with every cast until it spanned nearly a hundred feet.

"Still the Emperor smoked lazily, and, saving that little movement of the wrist, reposed as motionless and serene as the rock upon which he sat.

Suddenly Strong's figure underwent a remarkable change. He bent forward, alert as a panther in sight of his prey. His mouth was open, his eyes full of animation. The supple wrist bent swiftly. The flies sprang up and flashed about the water in its flight.

Where the squirrel rose a big trout had sprung above water and came down with a splash. But he had missed his aim.

Again the flies lighted precisely where the trout sprang and waved slowly through the double bushel baskets per day. Silence followed. The fished arrow burst above water in a veil of mist; down he plunged with a fierce grab at the tail fly. The wrist of the fisherman sprang upward and the line came down as a fisherman strike at the river bottom. The rod was bending. The fish had given a quick haul, and now the line's end came rushing in. The shrewd old trout knew how to gather slack line on a fisherman's rod and silk the fisherman held to check him. Strong's line ripped through the water place from mid-river to the shadow of the bank. The strain upon the fish's jaw halted him. He settled beside the rock, and the line in his mouth raised one foot and tapped the butt of his rod. The report seemed to go down the line as if it had been a telephone message. It started the trout, and again he took a long reach of silk off the reel.

There slowly he was backing and forth through an arc of some twenty feet, and the long line swung like a pendulum. Weakened by his efforts, he began to lead in. Slowly he came near the rock, and soon the splendid trout lay gasping from utter weariness an arm's length from his captor.

"As the net approached he dove again, hauling with fierce energy. The man was leaning over the edge of the rock, his rod in one hand, his line in the other. He came near losing his balance in the sudden attack. He scrambled into position. Again the trout gave up and followed the strain of the leader. Strong let himself down upon the river-bottom by the side of the rock, and the fish was water. The fish retreated again and came back helpless and was taken."

Concerning the Business Girl.
"It simply could not stand it," she confided, pettishly, to a friend. "The hours were easy, the work easy, but all three of the men in the office smoked whenever they felt like it, and put their feet upon the desk and were not a bit polite to me."

The type of girl which has helped to make the business girl unpopular. Not that it is her fault but her misfortune, for she is laboring under a false standard of values. She is taking a drawing-room rule to measure a business office custom, and the two will never jibe.

For when a person goes into the business world it is not to consider the Chesterfield attitude of man toward woman, or lady toward gentleman. In the business world, which looks not at anything but money and the time which is the same as money, of value given in service for wages received, there is little respect of persons, and the girl who learns this first is the girl who is first going to succeed.

A girl does not go into business to charm men, nor are men in business for the sake of being charmed by their feminine business employees. They are both out for the dollar, and for the time put in at that pursuit; but not men nor women but common factors, gods in the great wheels which turn the machinery of commerce. As cogs then and fellow cogs there is neither occasion, time nor inclination for romance and beckons and wretched smiles. The business man who can think best with a cigar in his mouth and his feet on his desk should not be expected to lower them because of the presence in the office of a cog who wears a skirt.

There are some people who would say that he should be willing to show respect for women at all and all times, if he be of the right stuff, but she is not there as a woman, but as a common factor, a worker who turns upon the same wheel upon which all business workers are bound. The altitude of feet or the burning of tobacco is not, however, a real indication of a lack of real respect for womanhood. The man with the finest, most deferential manners is often the one without an atom of respect for any woman in his heart. While the blunt and rough customer, whose rudeness or coarseness of regard so deeply that he appears to a great disadvantage thereby.

The sensible business girl is not going to take much thought about this matter of deference and attention. She is going forth to do her task with quiet and thorough attention, and blind and deaf to all that does not concern her; engrossed in her work, she will not notice whether the cogs or cogs in her vicinity, male or female, are paying her homage or not; she is there for business, not for society small talk or usage.

Twinklers.
"Courtin' and boss-tradin' are considerable alike." A man makes a better made if he ain't too impudent. "A woman can throw a hint straighter than a man can throw a rock."

Theoretically, a man "chooses a girl from all the world" because he loves her. Practically, the modern, listless man marries the girl he is unable to get away from.

A WOMAN'S ORDEAL

DREADS DOCTOR'S QUESTIONS

Thousands Write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and Receive Valuable Advice Absolutely Confidential and Free

There can be no more terrible ordeal to a delicate, sensitive, refined woman than to be obliged to answer certain questions in regard to her private life, even when those questions are asked by her family physician, and many continue to suffer rather than submit to examinations which so many physicians propose in order to intelligently treat the disease; and this is the reason why so many physicians fail to cure female disease.

This is also the reason why thousands upon thousands of women are corresponding with Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. To her they can confide every detail of their illness, and from her great knowledge, obtained from years of experience in treating female ills, Mrs. Pinkham can advise sick women more wisely than the local physician.

Read how Mrs. Pinkham helped Mrs. T. C. Willadsen, of Manning, Ia. She writes: Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"I can truly say that you have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude in words. Before I wrote to you telling you how I felt, I had doctored for over two years steadily, and spent lots of money in medicines besides, but it all failed to do me any good. I had trouble and would daily have fainting spells, headache, bearing-down pains, and my monthly periods were very irregular and finally ceased. I wrote to you for your advice and received a letter full of instructions just what to do, and also commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I have been restored to perfect health. Had it not been for you I would have been in my grave to-day."

Mountains of proof establish the fact that no medicine in the world equals Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for restoring women's health.

A Great Blessing.
To be contented with and is a duty we owe not only to ourselves and our Creator, but to our families, friends, and acquaintances. Gibbon said, "Every man has two educations; one which he receives from others, and one which he gives to himself." So a man has two pleasures; one which he receives from self and one which he receives from others. Did you ever stop to think how much joy we receive from others?

Then tell me from what class of companions comes your enjoyment. It is not the discontented and complaining ones. It is the hopeful, cheerful, happy ones. Then read your duty to others, and make them happy by your happy cheerful presence.

One of the sources of discontent is the fact that most of us think that something beyond our reach is better than that within our grasp. We become accustomed to our surroundings and fail to detect and appreciate their beauties, loveliness and worth.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

After Thirty Years.

The marriage of Daniel H. Tripp of Portland and Fannie Elizabeth Sheets of Harrisonburg, Va., was a culmination of a courtship that began many years ago, but was interrupted and not renewed until recently. They were married by Rev. J. W. Duffey at the Methodist church, only a few friends White bride being present. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Tripp left the bride's southern home for Washington, Philadelphia and New York City for their honeymoon. They will reside on the groom's farm at Portland. Mr. Tripp is 50 years of age and his bride is quite a number of years his junior.

The groom is a native of Oxford County, Maine, but years ago he went to Rookingham and Miss Sheets, then a young girl at the home of her father, the late Joseph Sheets, for many years a well known farmer of the Melrose neighborhood. The acquaintance formed at that time resulted in a courtship but Mr. Tripp, after coming to Maine, and the couple after corresponding for some time drifted apart. He afterward married and Miss Sheets went to Harrisonburg.

About a year ago, after the death of his wife, Mr. Tripp thought of his sweetheart of former days. He made inquiries and found that Miss Sheets was still in Harrisonburg. He wrote her, the courtship of former days was renewed, and he went to Harrisonburg to press his suit and won.

The acquaintance of the couple began thirty years ago.

OXFORD.

Celebrates 86 Birthday.

Last Thursday a party of six spent the day at Thompson Lake in honor of the 86th birthday of Daniel Whitehouse of Brookton, who is the guest of relatives in town. In the party besides Mr. Whitehouse there were C. L. Farnham, Dr. E. B. Holden, George Hazen, A. F. Smith, Almon Crocker and A. N. Record.

O. D. Stinchfield of Auburn was recently in town on business.

Heloise Hersey of Boston is spending a few days at the Hersey homestead.

Mildred Wardwell and Ethel Flood were in Norway one day last week on business.

Jennie Meserve of Freedom, N. H., is visiting her sister, Mrs. C. S. McAllister of Main street.

Herman Wilson is moving his family into the house on Main street owned by Scott Patterson.

Mrs. Orpha Chapman, Florence Eaton and Gussie Wardwell attended the Y. M. C. U. convention at Rumford Falls last week.

Belle Corning of Hartford, Conn., has arrived to spend the summer in Oxford, and for the present is stopping at Belmont Lodge.

John D. Robinson and a friend, Henry Kious of Lawrence Mass., captured 20 fine lake trout at Thompson Lake one day last week.

Dr. H. L. Bartlett, Rev. B. S. Rideout and Thomas Thibodeau of Norway, made a fine catch of fish at Thompson Lake Wednesday of last week. They secured one salmon weighing four pounds and thirteen ounces, and five lake trout.

But for the prompt action of the employees of Morris Clark's basket shop on High street, the structure would have been destroyed by fire Thursday forenoon. Sparks from an unusually hot fire of waste caused the fire to catch on the dry roof.

George Richards of South Paris started on a fishing trip, Saturday, accompanied by a friend. When at some distance from the shore one of the oars broke and the men were obliged to pull in by hand. They landed the nearest landing place and foot the distance of a mile and a half to Oxford village.

PIGEON HILL.

J. H. King & Sons have got a new pair of horses.

Mrs. Nellie Thayer has returned to Norway to the shoe shop.

The Hollis Rich farm has been sold to a Mr. Adams of North Paris.

Mrs. Eliza Collins has been with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Barron. Mrs. Barron was recently badly injured by a fall.

The State Cattle Commission is still at work testing cattle at the Mory Farm. Several were condemned last week. We understand the State has control of the entire stock.

Clarence Graffam has got his new ell on his house well started. Will Graffam has begun work on his house. He is to raise the roof one story. Wm. Martin is building a tool and store house. A. D. Thayer has done quite extensive repairs on his house.

CASCO.

Mrs. Hacker Hall is visiting her mother in Bridgton.

Dana Hamlin and family have moved to Bolster's Mills.

Rev. J. L. Monroe finished her services in this church, May 20.

L. W. Holden and wife were in Portland one day recently.

Cyrus Mayberry of Brookline, Mass., was in town, Sunday, May 13.

Several from this place attended the Sabbath School convention at Webb's Mills, May 2.

Mae E. Hancock has graduated from Emerson school at Oratory, Boston, and returned home.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, it swells and shuts off the passage. Hearing is then lost. If you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; the cause of deafness is caused by Catarrh of the Eustachian Tube. Send for circulars, free.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Dr. J. C. Cheney's Cure. Send for circulars, free.
